Emmylou Harris in Adelaide

Multiple Grammy winner Emmylou Harris is touring Australia in November. (Adelaide November 8th!)

At 63 years of age she has sold 15 million albums, recorded with Bob Dylan and Roy Orbison, and collaborated with the likes of Johnny Cash and Dolly Parton.

Commenting on her latest record release Hard Bargain... "The people in your life, and the joy of life, will always bring you back no matter what; and I think that's echoed in every song in a way." The clear message of Hard Bargain is that music; like life; will go on.

Emmylou plays the following shows this November:

- November 6 - Perth Concert Hall, Perth
- November 8 - The Barton Theatre, Adelaide
- November 10 - Palais Theatre, Melbourne
- November 12 - Canberra Theatre, Canberra
- November 15 - State Theatre, Sydney
- November 16 - Jupiters Casino, Gold Coast

Emmylou Harris is the daughter of Walter Harris and Eugenia. Her father, a member of the Marine Corps was reported missing in action in Korea in 1952 and spent ten months as a prisoner of war.

Born in Birmingham, Alabama, Emmylou spent her childhood in North Carolina and Woodbridge, Virginia. In high school she won a drama scholarship to the University of North Carolina, where she began to study music seriously, learning to play the songs of Pete Seeger, Bob Dylan and Joan Baez on guitar.

Leaving college to pursue her musical aspirations, she moved to New York, working as a waitress to support herself while performing folk songs in Greenwich Village coffeehouses.

In 1981 Emmylou reached the Top 40 on the Billboard pop chart with a cover of "Mister Sandman". She moved to Nashville in 1982 recording a string of cover songs. Until then Emmylou's major-label releases had included very few self-penned songs, but in 1985 her songwriting skills came to light, her list of awards spanning many years.
