Australia's First Ever Number One Hit

Australia's first ever Number 1 Hit Single has newly celebrated its First Half Century.

April 2007 marked 50 years since the recording of Australia's first ever hit single 'A Pub With No Beer'.

This iconic song recorded by Slim Dusty and written by Gordon Parsons, was not only the first ever #1 hit record by an Australian artist, but also Australia's first ever international hit.

Recorded back in April 1957 in the EMI 301 studios, Slim's best mate Gordon Parsons, known as 'The Yodelling Bushman' lent a hand when Slim fell short of songs to record.

The song stayed in the charts for over six months and sales climbed to unprecedented sales for an Aussie artist.

Gordon Parsons wife Jeanette indicated that Gordon's song was about a fictitious little country pub. But we all know the pub is real..... Don't we?

In further praise to the song sung by her beloved husband, Slim's wife, Joy McKean, says... "It's an amazing feat for any song to live so long in the consciousness of people and remain so popular for so many years that it becomes almost an anthem, but that is what 'the Pub' has done. It is still so current in people's minds and memories that its 50th anniversary has almost taken everyone by surprise. I would like to wish 'the Pub'.... many happy returns of the day!"

To celebrate the historic recording's 50th anniversary, EMI Australia recently released the

Three CD, 60 song set 'Pubs, Trucks And Plains'

The set not only commemorates A Pub With No Beer, but also Slim's many beer-related songs recorded during an amazing career spanning 60 years, and resulting in 7 million record sales.
